“Herr Louis Engel must be ranked among the most talented professors of the Harmonium. As a performer on the instrument, he has perhaps no superior. The elementary work before us, ‘The Harmonium Album,’ proves that he is a master of indoctrination. We have never seen so great an amount of instruction conveyed in such few terms as are comprised in the preface of this interesting work. Almost all that could be pointed out to the beginner is set down in three pages, and expressed with clearness and perspicuity. The musical contents of the Album call for no particular remark beyond the fact that they comprise most of the popular airs of the day, arranged with neatness and simplicity. We may add that the work is well got up, and constitutes a handsome volume, in green and gold covers, with nearly sixty pages of type or letter-press.”—The Morning Chronicle, October 11, 1859.
